URGES INSPECTION OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

President Schroers of the Board of Education Requests Mayor Wells's Aid.

TO GUARD AGAINST DISEASE.

Suggests That the Board of Health Adopt Regulations for the Protection of Public School Pupils.

In a letter to Mayor Wells, President John Schroers of the Board of Education calls of the spread of disease among school chil-dren, and urges a regular medical inspection of the schools in St. Louis, as is done in Chicago, New York, Boston, Philadelphia and other large cities of the United States. He also suggests that the Board of Health take up the matter.

President Schroers says that the St. Lou Board of Health could do much to prevent the infection, and the spread of diphtheric and scarlet fever in particular. School children, he says, are so placed as to be especially subject to infection. The Board of Education offers to co-operate with the Board of Health in any plan which may be adopted, and calls upon Mayor Wells to see that the health officials perform this important duty.

President Schroers to Mayor Wells. Mr. Schroers's letter follows, in part:

Mr. Schroers's letter follows, in part:

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 18, 1801.—Henerable
Rolla Wells, Mayor of the City of St.
Louis: Dear Sir-Recognizing the fact that the State owes not only the duty to its children to educate them, but also to preserve their health, I deem it my duty to ca. your attention to the need of medical inspection of schools for the purpose of detecting comagious and other diseases among the school children. Sanitary conditions at school affect not only the children, for one-fifth of the St. Louis population is in school, and this fifth inevi ably carries disease, if it finds it in the schoolroom, into every family in the city.

it finds it in the achoolroom, into every family in the city.

It has long been recognized that the schools are an important factor in the spread of contagious diseases, in addition to the fact that in any collection of large numbers of people within a small space, we have a favorable condition for the spread of infection. The children are of a susceptible age, in their play and in the school exercises the children come in close contact and use many articles in common.

There are two aims of the system of school inspection: First, to detect cases of contagious diseases in the schoolroom and to exclude them before they have done mischer; and, secondly, to secure better isolation of cases of contagious diseases at home, as soon as these of contagious diseases at home, as soon as these Advises Systematic Examination. The need for greater public care over the schools must interest the municipal authorities, and the transmission of diseases could best be overcome by systematic examination of the school children by medical inspection of the Health Department.

Department, All other large cities in this country, like Bos-All other large cities in this country, like Boston, New York, Chicago, and also in European countries, adopted medical inspection of schedule years ago, and the results obtained have been such that this inspection is no longer an experiment. While the main purpose of the Board of Health is undoubtedly the preservation of life, yet the community has the right to demand the best possible protection against the apread of diseases and the incidental interruption of the school life of the child.

The fact that the chief responsibility in this matter devolves upon the city Board of Health impels me to call your attention to the same, for the purpose of considering the advisability of prompt action upon my suggestions.

Mr. E. C. Eliot, chairman of the Committee on Instruction, and Professor F. Louis Soldan, Superintendent of Instruction, will gladly conferwith your Honer and the Board of Health in this matter, and make such recommendations to the Board of Education as to insure the full cooperation of this body. SQUAW DRESS SELLS FOR $1,600.

Ornamented With Over Thousand Elks' Teeth and Has Been Heirloom of Cheyenne Family.

El Reno, Ok., Nov. 18.-To-day O. L. Richards, a dealer in Indian relics, paid the sum of $1,000 for an Indian squaw dress ornamented with 1,624 clk teeth. This dress has been in one Cheyenne family for a period of 127 years, and for a long time speculators and collectors of curios have tried to purchase it. Many photographs have been telling any tales. It is believed that the dead man was stunned by the explosion, which was very heavy, and the others, thinking he was too badly crippled to get away, shot him.

An identification card, bearing the name of Charles M. Kinney, was found on the dead man. The card was a guarantee from the International Registry Company for expenses of caring for Kinney in case of sickness or accident.

It is thought that the dead man is one of taken of the dress and two or three scores scarce and readily sell for from $1 to $19 each. With the Indians each elk tooth represents the value of a pony and stands for o much wealth: It is claimed by Mrs. Bent that several of the elk teeth on the dress were gifts from Joseph, the great Nez Perces chief.
